Crop Summary. CHICAGO, August 8th .- The following rop summary will appear in this week's sue of the Farmers' Review. The rains have improved the prospects for corn exports of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio d Kansas, while in Indiana the tenor o the reports indicate an average yield. The very large sections in all the remaining corn-growing States have as yet had no re-lief from the drought, and reports are now oming in which would indicate a failura of the crop in wide areas. Reports from Putnam county, in Illinois, state that much of the corn is fired in the ear, and some to the tassel. The entire crop threatens to be a failure. In Minnesota corn has attained a growth of six to eight feet, and the present outlook is for nearly a full average crop. In Olmstead and Blue Earth counties the outlook is very good. Throughout Missouri the prospect is not good for more than one-half to three-fourths of an average In Worth, Pulaski and Lafayette counties the crop appears to be almost ruined. In Michigan the outlook for corn an average yield. In Nebraska the pros pect continues good for a nearly full average yield. The quality of winter wheat is generally reported as above the average. Dry, plump and hard giving, that grain will grade unusually well. This is the tenor of the reports from Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. THE POLICY OF GOVERNMENT INTER-FERENCE.

It is settled now, and let us up hope for ever, that Government interference will take place whenever there is direct or in direct action on the part of any people that tends to destroy the navigability of the streams and harbors under the control of the Federal Government. The RECORD-Union, from the outset, and for many years, has contended that this should be the policy of the Government. It was always culpable neglect, on its part, to refuse to interfere. It was error to say that the Government ought to do nothing in the matter of forbidding the destruction of its river trusts, until the State through which the rivers flow had put an end to works that damaged the rivers. The hesitating policy has now been abandoned, and that for which this journal so long battled is accomplished fact, to wit, that whenever property of the Government is menaced by individual acts, or a trust of the Government is threatened with injury, it is the duty of the Federal arm to stretch forth and check the wrong. We look upon the action of Congress in affirming this doctrine as of the highest and most far-reach ing importance. It really marks a new era in the internal policy of this nation. It forever settles the question of the duty of the General Government to every fre highway that is the heritage of all the people of all the country. Navigable rivers and harbors are in Federal control and of necessity must be under Federal protection to the extent of forbidding their injury. It has taken more than a decad cognition. We now have it without any tically says "the rivers and harbors are the property of all the people, free to the commerce of all the States and the use of all citizens of the Republic The whole people have an individual interest in them, and the burden is not upon the State of their locality to take concern guardian of these heritages, and as such, it is bound to conserve their best interests." Had Congress enunciated this right doctrine fifteen years ago, as distinctly as it now has in the river and harbor bill millions of dollars would have been saved to California, a vast expenditure now necessary by the Federal Government have been avoided, and this section of the State greatly more advanced toward its full pos sibilities. It must be understood that the legislation to which we refer does not re late to California rivers alone. It is a Government policy that applies to all navigable streams and natural harbors. While we denominate it a "new policy," this is not strictly true. In fact, years ago the Federal Government intervened to prevent injury by artificial process to its western rivers and harbors. It so acted in regard to the harbors of the great lakes, it so acted in relation to the Mississippi, it enacted laws looking in that direction relative to atlantic harbors in the matter o dumping ground's, and it has several times intervened to prevent diversion of navigable streams, and the changing of their channels by artificial cuts in southern and middle States. But not until the present year has the policy of the Government regarding navigable water-way obstructions been so clearly defined by statute, or the positive mandate issued to Government agents to proceed by all legal methods to prohibit acts destructive of navigation. It may be said, therefore, that it is a new policy of Congress as to method, at least; that the tiveory of Gov-
